Connie Collins, major organizations working together on the same level, states, "One thing all three have in common is getting more big name bands." One of the chief purposes of the three major organizations, Gerry feels, is "to use the leadership power on campus. We'll do a lot of this through joint projects."

Connie Collins, presidens-elect of Rec, is a junior and is in a health and physical education major from Savannah, Georgia. She plans to teach her major after graduation, although her plans are still indefinite. Connie also intends to return to earn her master's degree.

During her freshman, sophomore, and junior years Connie served on the Rec Board in such offices as Dorm Manager, Swimming Chairman, and Recording Secretary. For her activities for next year, Connie admits that she has no definite plans. A Sunday night supper is in one of many possible ideas, but it is still in the discussion stage. Rec will sponsor a retreat for both old and new members when the end of the quarter to make plans for spring quarter and new officers the following year with their responsibilities.

Connie summed up Rec's most important contributions this year, saying, "It provides activities which offer each of us an opportunity to make enjoyable use of our leisure time."

Campus Comedy

Excerpted from Reader's Digest

When an impertinent exam was agreed with by the professor, one of my classmates spoke up and said: "That is not the sort of answer I expected." "You're completely correct," he said. "I'm impressed by the thoroughness of your work."

Think's Thou To Seduce Me Then?

By Linda Rogers

Monday night as I was preparing my English verses and being, I remembered, reciting the ode of "Venus and the Mirror" by Pope. I thought of nothing at the time, but as I was reading the next day, I began to wonder if that same thing had happened to me. So on coming home, I thought I would try my best to save something of that fig. On entering the room, I saw the window shutters being brought over the large open window, which I afterwards apprehended, pp. 46 and 47.

A Word Of Thanks

A couple of weeks ago my name in COA came up in class discussion and the professor asked if anyone knew who I was. In a long discussion on the topic of college, the professor mentioned my name. The professor continued: "I want to thank you very much for your contribution to our discussion. Your insights were very valuable and added a unique perspective to our conversation." The professor then concluded by saying: "I hope you will continue to participate in our discussions and share your ideas with us." I was very touched by the professor's words and I hope to continue to contribute to our discussions in the future.

Dear Oedipus,

I've been considering running for a minor office, but no one asks me and I refuse to declare myself eligible (morally, you understand.) How can I do that logical hint?

Civic Minded

Dear C. M.,

If you haven't enough courage for gall to shout your virtues in the multitude forget the subtle hints, your friends probably wouldn't know one if it stepped up to bit them.

G. P.

Dear Oedipus,

I've just begun to plan my major courses for next year, and everything I need is offered at the same time, my advisor is dizzier than I am, and I'm not even sure I want to major in Elementary Secondary Education. I'm so confused. Help!

Bewildered

Dear Bewildered,

In the words of our famous Secretary of State, Dean Rank, "If you think you're confused, take heart, you're only in touch with reality," and college is the most confusing reality I've ever confronted.

Dear Oedipus,

When I heard the voting results I was appalled at the apathy on this campus. I think it's disgraceful that no one is interested in their school's political functions. Do you agree?

Indignant

Dear Indig: Why, yes ... of course ... ?

P.S. (what election? Was there some election?)

Dr. Lee Discusses

Dr. Donald MacMahon can bring to the spoken word the program achieved fruition. Have to admit I was shocked when Dr. MacMahon added to his text a "Yeah, yeah, yeah!" stirred with more gusto than ever the Beatles can, but it was, in their fashion, elegant. And the haphazard that I wanted to see and hear under the hands of Miss Underwood and Dr. Wolfenstein also added a special audacity to the other songs. What can I say? The program was wonderful. The performers were charming; the audience was charmed. And I went away from "An Evening of English Verse and Song" feeling the effects of an hour well spent.

The summer before its new role of housing the library, meanwhile the new dorm, a 154 unit structure, should be ready by September, 1966. The new dorm will have separate rooms for the community, and Dr. Lee added that the last furniture plane had been seen,

Simply scraggly

Administrators are planning the opening of the student dormitory for several years to make the best use of room furnishings that the students themselves must provide as well as to enable each student to stay with the group of her choosing. This system has been used successfully in many other colleges, Dr. Lee indicated.

Thinking in terms of a radical departure from the present size of the dorms on campus, Dr. Lee said, "The ground breaking should take place "before the end of 1966."

Moving on to the parking problem involved with 150 student cars on campus, with the promise of more to come, Dr. Lee said the area areas possibly destined to become parking lots. The most definite stipula dated for conversations was the Plaza plan on North Clark Street in front of Parks Hall and Russell Auditorium.

Another large lot, which will hold the present load of student cars and leave for room, may be located In the Sandford-Wells vicinity, Benson and Mill may also have smaller ones one area.

Dr. Lee announced that next year's freshmen and juniors should be in search of a new Skipper workshop, as Terrell Rec Hall will be housing the library while the library proper un

Holding will begin in March for the addition of 15,000 square feet of space at the rear of the present library. Further plans include the addition of a second floor to the new sec tion in ten or 15 years, at which time the old library will be renovated and the main entrance will be placed in the area nearest the center of the campus.

The greatest gift of the college to the campus, the library. The books will be transported from the library to Terrell Rec Hall Dr. Lee did not say, but Rome points to other arti
