MERRY CHRISTMAS

Dead Week - It's Purpose
And Effectiveness

Very few people have the delusion that Dead Week achieves its original purposes. About 1953, the students of GSCW requested that a week be set aside before final exams in which extracurricular activities would be cut to a minimum and field trips prohibited. The administration under President dancing at 8:00, in Russell Auditorium at 7:30.

Sanford granted their request, however, the students of this college have defeated their own purposes.
Most students on campus describe Dead Week somewhat like this: "It's a farce," "I don't see any difference in Dead Week and any other week," and "This is the busiest week of the whole quarter." None of the students seem to think Dead Week has achieved its real purpose.

However, the students have often failed to see the real reason Dead Week has failed; the students themselves. The rules against meetings of campus organizations have been removed fairly well, and field trips are now non-essential for Dead Week.
Certainly Dead Week is very busy academically as students and teachers try to finish the required subject matter for the various courses, but, contrary to popular belief, there has never been a rule against tests during Dead Week. However, the students themselves have mustered less of parties and meetings that do not require permission from the Dean's office. According to the Dean's office more requests for exceptions to Dead Week rules have been submitted this quarter than ever before.
Dean Christy claims believes that the students are the ones who will have to make Dead Week effective.
Since the students at Georgia College help make their own rules through CFS, his suggestion can be realized. Only when the students become concerned enough about the ineffectiveness of Dead Week and decide to dispatch some of the nonessential activities during this week can Dead Week achieve its original purposes. If the students weigh the matter and de-side that higher academic performance should not be worth discontinuing outside activities, then Dead Week will continue as it is.

Everybody's Scramble

Have you ever noticed the sign in the dining hall that reads "This is not a cafteria, it's a scramble"? This is not meant as a joke. Do you know what it means? A scramble system is a free-flow system based on selection or choice rather than a complete meal such as the student goes through the serving area. The term
"free flow" indicates that there is no line to be involved. The student should serve himself or herself while he is in the serving area and

The Student?

He speaks out against the wrongs of society and government, even when he is in the ranks of orthodoxy. He fights with the police in Chicago and cries "Kneel on Go Home!" when Indiana is invaded. He supports his cause in every presidential campaign and heckles the others when they try to speak. It's concerned with his fellow man's well-being yet earns his own living. It's an idealistic, in every way you know nothing of life, but it's a fact that he will live. Though he's been beaten and spit upon, he never gives up his search for freedom; for himself, for his age, for the earth and even only what he can touch.

Are there individuals -- the nation?

Post Office

Cramped and Crowded

One should not attack an institution or system when one says "this institution is in need of improvement or change in the established way. This is true of the Georgia College post office. Of course, you have been in the post office because every student, including your own, is expected to use it for the business concerns of the college. The following are but a few of the items found in your post office. It would make a good idea to use the post office and not worry about the cost involved in improving or changing the post office. (Post office can be done by simple observation.)

You must think that you should share your post office with another student -- you may have been watching. The idea is perhaps to find out what your business is doing as well as the cost of your own and other people's mail.

When you pick up your packages from the post office window tomorrow, notice the U.S. employment pi/ling area trying to get the mail in your boxes as quickly as possible. It is in this office that the mail will be dropped if it is too fast within the window space. (One cannot well receive the mail that is dropped on the floor and not have it be dropped on you.)

There are 500 C.C. students and 500 homes and offices that care for the mail. If you have ever been responsible for the mail, you will know the importance of it. It is a fact that the mail is delivered to the student's house when he is not home. The post office then arrives and is delivered to the student's house when he is not home.

Of course, the new service schedule will bring the mail, but can we wait? What will happen next summer when we are not here? More men, but also more faculty members. We need something new.

The Hungry 1

In the last issue of the Collegian there appeared an article attempting to gain a superficial habit. The article, although probably well written, was not well thought out. The article was not well thought out. The author of the article would have us believe that the idea of the article was to gain a superficial habit. More Excuses

During this quarter many students have been heard to say that they came to Georgia College in order to improve their grade average. This seems to be a fallacy. Evidently the entire student body doesn't know that GC is not even in the top 20 percent of the state. This is a fact that many students and administrators have become aware of in the fact that GC is not, by any means, at the top of the charts.

A conversation overheard this weekend in the SU seems to show that at least one person was able to pull up his average at GC in the last quarter. Perhaps the student should have been able to pull up his grades for this quarter as the student has worked hard. He has not/his help hard enough to do the marks in the course, but he doesn't have the grades to stay in this office.

Perhaps the students will learn from this quarter that change colleges or suffer in your studies if you can do a little studying.
