Student Senate Amends Resolution No. 2

By Don Williams

Senate Resolution Number 2, sponsored by Senator David Pettigrew, expressing, disapproval of the October 15 Peace Moratorium and of any future similar functions, was passed last Tuesday at the regular Senate meeting. The result was quite dynamic, in that it was followed by a petition for a referendum Tuesday night, a student opinion poll during the day Wednesday, and final amendment of the resolution by Senate Resolution Number 5.

A Student Rights Organization is presently in the organizational stages on the Georgia College Campus. In the past Student Rights Organization has been proposed in the AS and is now being put in form of a club. Several members of the organization have discussed the possibility of forming a club, it is now time for the students to take advantage of the rights they have been given by the Constitution.

Q: Recently a petition was circulated in Dr. Sallstrom's classes which concerned the interest in a philosophy major. Why do I see it as an interesting petition but not get a chance to do so previously?

A: Because Dr. Sallstrom preferred having a discussion on the philosophy major rather than having a petition on the matter.

Q: Will the findings of the committee hearing the case of Dr. LaPointe be binding on the administration of Georgia College?

A: Yes, the findings of the committee will be used in any future action against Dr. LaPointe.

Q: Since we freshmen have not signed the Honor Code are we supposed to sign the pledge on our papers and tests?

A: No, freshmen should not sign the pledge on their papers and tests.

Q: What was Bertha Patel saying when she entered the Senate's office the night before a resolution on the Peace Moratorium was passed?

A: She was expressing her dissatisfaction with the resolution and her support for the Peace Moratorium.

Action In Our Senate!

On stumblng out of bed Wednesday morning, many students were shocked into awareness by three aces of the Student Senate. They were simply caught on their own bulletin boards. These included the change of Women's Curfew, the recognition of the Student Press Organization, and the creation of the curfew that would draw up a Student Bill of Rights.

The startling fact is that, as a body, the Student Senate has actually done something. In fact the only stumbling block to these actions was technical quibbling by Chipper Messer and David Pettigrew. Messer also voted, against the Women's Curfew Act, which was a rather questionable decision considering the constituency he represents. It would certainly seem to be in the interest of every male student to push the curfew reform, if only for hedonistic reasons, unless the interests of the male and female question are rather unequal. But of course that is +Beau Hill to decide.

This reformation of women's curfews, similar to those rules instituted during World War I by the University of Georgia, might if student government were to remain effective, be enacted by President Bunting. Excellent results of the system all the University of Athens have encouraged administrative efforts, and a credit to Mr. Bunting. But clearly demonstrate that there is no place at Georgia College for such actions. The only alternative to such reformation action by Dr. Bunting would be the automatic discard of Columbia, Berkeley, and their ilk.

Senator Messer also voted against recognition of the Student's Rights Organization, and vocally abstained from voting for the committee to draw up a Student Bill of Rights. This bill of Rights, an idea borne out of the informal student-faculty discussion held here this quarter, draws strange comment from (legally) Senator Messer. He presented noting faculty members to this student government committee, so that they might "guide the students as to their "rules and regulations." Senator Pettigrew mentioned the "great wisdom" which faculty members, through their experience, could add to the committee, which makes one wonder if some faculty members might be more qualified to represent Bunting's constituents.

This new flurry of action brings new possibilities to Georgia College, but by no means solves all the scions problems. There remain the punitive allegiance rules, a warlike fraternities, college-member relationships, and questionable aims. The new academic curriculum, inadequate, student aid, and a student library, unequal House Council rules, required P.E. courses, and a hundred other things that, like the first three measures, beg to be remedied. But this Student Senate has demonstrated that it is possible, and willing; all it needs is your help.

Campus In The Round

Circle K and SRO

By Raymond Stevenson

The recent announcement by Dr. Bunting, President of Circle K, of the organization's plan to affiliate with Circle K for Student Government, was by no means viewed as a possibility by Georgia College students to make a meaningful contribution to their college community.

"Their actions, according to officials and faculty at Georgia College, are the result of a lack of involvement with other groups on campus. This is not to say that other groups on campus are not involved; but Circle K and SRO, are they?"

Such a statement would be true if Georgia College were to continue in its present state. But Circle K and SRO are now active on campus, and are involved with other groups on campus.

Senate Passes New Curfew And Recognizes SRO

The Student Senate held its regular meeting Tuesday in Pofahl Auditorium on second floor, and attended to several articles of business, the most prominent one being the passage of Senate Bill No. 2, which establishes a new curfew for women students. Also, the Senate granted ex-campus status to the Student Rights Organization, and provide for a seven-member student committee to draft a declaration of students' rights.

leave out another important well-done job and this time the launching go to Mr. Hal Shubert at the Dining Service. He has listened to students seriously and has taken some of their suggestions seriously, particularly to the toothpick in the Dining Lines. The Dining Hall is open all day instead of two or three hours. There is a lounge area with more hangers for clothes and shelves for books. Also, fried eggs on order every breakfast and lunch. Now, reglued with food and revitalized with sports, one does not forget art. This gentleman’s efforts have gone unheeded for too long. With a dining service head, Mr. Delton J. Edelman has consistently shown that Georgia College, plays that provokes thought and discussion. As he is this criteria is concerned, Mr. Edelman has done an especially fine job. Consider, there are less than that two thousand students on campus, close to half are commuters and those that are left are, hopefully, in other organizations which do not give them much time to participate in the area.

I think it is time to repeat our blessings and by so doing produce an attitude for future benefits.

Senator Mike Simpson presented Senate Bill No. 2. A bill to Establish New Curfew Regulations for Women Students at Georgia College. After much lively discussion, the bill was passed by a vote of fifteen in favor, one against, and ten abstaining from voting.

RESOLUTIONS

Senate Resolution Number 6, entitled A Resolution Recognizing and Establishing the Students’ Rights Organization at Georgia College at Milledgeville, sponsored by Senator Eugene Stevenson, was passed. The resolution grants on-campus status to the Student’s Rights Organization, “with all rights and privileges appertaining therein.” Senator Stevenson pointed out that the SRO has met all the requirements for on-campus status. (Those requirements being the drafting of a constitution, the election of a board of officers by a majority vote of the organization, the formulation of a purpose, and the selection of a faculty advisor.) The resolution was passed by a vote of twenty-five to one.

Senator Susan Jackson presented Senate Resolution Number 7. A Resolution for the Formation of a Student Committee to Draft a Statement on Student Rights and Freedoms at Georgia College. Senator Hayter, who sponsored the resolution, said that the Student’s Rights Organization have met all the requirements for on-campus status. Senator Chipper Messer made a motion to amend the resolution to state that the seven faculty members be included in the committee. After much discussion, the amendment was defeated 25-11. Voting on the resolution itself followed, and it was passed by a vote of 27 to 17 in favor, one opposed and two absent. Senator member abstaining from the vote.

The resolution provides for a committee of seven full-time students to be appointed by the CDA president, "to draft a formal declaration of student rights, freedoms, and privileges." A motion was made by Senator David Pettigrew to amend the resolution to read that the seven committee members must be approved by the Student Senate before appointment, and that one of the committee members must be a Senator. Both of those motions were defeated. Senator Chipper Messer made a motion to amend the resolution to state that the seven faculty members be included in the committee. After much discussion, the amendment was defeated 25-11. Voting on the resolution itself followed, and it was passed by a vote of 27 to 17 in favor, one opposed and two absent. Three members of the organizational SRO have been appointed by Bobbi Perel, CDA President, to be on the committee to draw up the Declaration of Student’s Rights which was authorized by the Senate Tuesday night.

All students are urged to attend SRO meetings and bring any ideas or questions concerning students’ rights. The SRO will make every attempt to obtain answers to any questions of this nature. Students with individual discrimination problems or students feeling they have received unfair treatment are urged to present their cases to the Student Rights Organization.
