Demonstrations: One A Day

Research Corporation found that "major incidents of student protest occurred in the campuses during the same period last year." As the study was released major protests occurred at University of Michigan and Washington University in St. Louis.

The Urban Research Corporation gathered its statistics on student protests by monitoring a number of newspapers, including campus underground papers, and checking with students and administrators on the campuses.

Sports Complex on the Way

A sports complex is finally getting out of the planning stage, and work has begun. The fantastic place is to have a football hand, golf course, etc. All such things that will enhance the college's athletic standing. No football field is to be built. All, after all, what school needs such sports as that? Another point of interest about the complex is that the pool will be quite handy for certain administrators.
