Nixon And The Cambodian Decision

Washington Watch

President Nixon’s decision to send American forces into Cambodia and Laos, ordering a massive bombing of both countries, was probably the most significant single action taken by either side in the Vietnam War. The American public, many of whom had grown weary of the war, was shocked by the announcement. The reaction of individual citizens varied widely, with some expressing support, while others, especially in the West, were outraged.

Vietnamese-Americans

The largest Vietnamese-American community outside Vietnam is located in California. According to a recent survey by the Asian American Legal Defense and Education Fund, more than 100,000 Vietnamese-Americans reside in the state. The majority of these individuals moved to California in the late 1970s and early 1980s, fleeing war and political instability in Vietnam.

Nixon’s Cambodian Decision

President Nixon’s decision to launch a military campaign in Cambodia and Laos was met with mixed reactions. Some people expressed support for the president’s actions, while others condemned his decision as a violation of international law.

Vietnam Moratorium Committee Dismants, Writes Open Letter

Dear Friend,

I am writing to encourage you to support our Vietnam Moratorium Committee. Our goal is to end the war in Vietnam, and we are holding a series of open meetings to discuss ways to achieve this goal.

Moss Seeks Closer Community

Georgia College

Moss Seeks Closer Community

The Georgia College faculty and administration are seeking ways to improve the relationship between the college and the community. They hope to increase the number of students who participate in community service projects, as well as to increase the number of faculty members who engage in community service.

Ties, Desecularization

Georgia College

Desecularization

Georgia College is one of many universities that is undergoing a process of desecularization. This process involves the removal of religious symbols and practices from the campus, as well as the creation of a more secular environment.

Black Students Rely On Community Colleges

LACP-Washington-A two year study comparing the roles of community colleges and four year colleges in providing education for black students found that community colleges are more effective in this regard.

Funding Of Studies Hampers Foreign Students In Sweden

The majority of the foreign students in Sweden who do not return to their home countries after graduation say that they are not able to find employment. Some of the reasons given for this include a lack of knowledge of the job market and the language barrier.

GC Gets Grant For Dietetics & Medical Technology

The United States Department of Education has awarded Georgia College a $300,000 grant to develop a new program in dietetics and medical technology.

Announcement of the grant was made by U.S. Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare Caspar Weinberger. In a statement released by the college, Weinberger said, "This grant will be used to develop new courses and programs in dietetics and medical technology, which are critical to the health and well-being of our citizens."
Community vs. College?

In the little town of Milledgeville, there is a little college called Georgia College. Milledgeville. There are about fifteen hundred students who go there. Lots of them spend their weekends on the streets, in the stores, and in the business of the town. Many of the students work for the town. Georgia College. But-all-also! The people of Milledgeville do not see them very clearly. They want to know what are the private colleges. The town, they are not interested in the college, but they want to know what are the students who come to Georgia College. Milledgeville.

BSU Participates in Deputation Program

This quarter the B.S.U. has made plans for several deputation programs and have formed a Pupil Forum for the same. The forum will meet every Sunday night at 5:30. The first deputation program will be presented at Hardwick Baptist Church on the theme of "The Great to Be Me." Two more deputation programs are planned for this quarter: one called "Be My Neighbor," to be presented at the Third Street Baptist Church in March and the other, May 31, at the deputation team will be at the National Baptist Church here in Milwaukie. Social and fellowship activities are planned for after the service. The theme for the upcoming programs is "Brotherly Love." The deputation program is opened to enrolled students who would like to participate. A long meeting is set for this Sunday night, 5:30, at the First Baptist Church.

A trip up to the town kept George Teniers of the Home Mission Board from being with us last Tuesday night for the program at Milwaukie. We gave us a chance to have fun with some good singing and fellowship. Mr. Peyton Cook, Chairman of the board, was with us on May 15 and led a discussion on "Walk A Mile in My Shoes." He led a meaningful discussion on the message that Jesus gave to the watches and a discussion that showed us how to live in Christ and the key to the Christian faith. Next week our discussion will be led by Jack King who is the editor of the Christian Index. His message will be centered around the "Impossible Dream." We will be meeting for the quarter so DON'T MISS IT!
