Chalk Lines And Pressure Tactics

Last Saturday's game against North Carolina was another thrilling battle for the Colonnade. The game was played in an understand during the first half of the match when it was scored. Finally, in the goal kick to the left, the Colonnade managed to score one goal. The victory was sealed when the Colonnade managed to win back the lead and score two more goals in the last 15 minutes.

The Colonnade is the student newspaper of Georgia College at Milledgeville, published weekly except during examination and holidays. It serves as a vehicle for the expression of student opinion and as a medium of communication between students and administration. The Colonnade is a non-profit organization, and all funds are raised through voluntary contributions.

Note From Sports Editor

In response to an open letter written last week, Colonnade Sports Editor, Mr. Jones, has announced that any future proposals must be accompanied by a written endorsement from the head basketball coach. Mr. Jones stated that this decision was made in the best interest of the team and its players.

Sponges-Braines Squirt Out Winning Votes

The worst thing that can be done in the Student Senate election is to have your God-given rights at a citizen's disposal. This is the case of the voters who listened to and used the list of the Day of the Dye Senate election as a guide for casting their votes.

Though the act of pressuring students into voting for a certain number of candidates is deplorable, the fact that you the student senate has allowed such action to take place and that no one else does your thinking for you is unacceptable. Furthermore, it was not your fault that the candidates did not campaign, but you could and should not have done the same when you knew or you were not involved.

This was the case, for all day Monday members of the newly elected board milked around in the Student Union area grabbing people and trying to convince them to cast their votes for the eighteenth candidates. They grabbed, and the people who would listen to them soon found themselves being pushed in the general direction of the voting table with the list in hand.

The leads one to feel that Georgia College consists of a few people with a few brains and a few sponges. These sponges, however, know no preference and have nothing to do with anxiety or all the things of being ignorance, not to mention the fact that it is written right out in the Charter that the Board of Trustees has no control over the content of the newspaper.

The Washington Post, feel this action, "is a fundamental attack on the freedom of the press. It is a serious matter which we do not support or agree with. We propose that in the future the editors continue to hold the front pages and the management and the Board of Trustees do not interfere with the editors."

To those of you who don't know who the editors are, they are the people who publish the newspaper. They are the people who have the initiative to attend the Senate meetings and give their opinions on how the Student Senate at Georgia College does not have any unethical practices. Time will tell. Our only hope is that we will continue to support our editors and that our empty seats may be filled by more reputable persons.

David Northington

David B. Northington, one of the new faculty in the music department this year at Georgia College, is a native of Macon, Ga. Mr. Northington is considered to be one of the finest pianists of the younger generation.

Mr. Northington is a graduate of the Cincinnati College Conservatory of Music and there he earned the Bachelor and Master of Music degrees.

At the age of nine he made his first public appearance and at eighteen he won the winner of the National American Scholarship Association's Piano Competition. Also that year he composed as the youngest contestant in the Second International Van Cliburn Piano Competition.

Mr. Northington has composed in many piano competitions, winning first place in the Boston Aaro Competition, the Marseasser Competition, and the McGray Piano Competition. He has appeared as guest artist with the Cincinnati Philharmonic, the Willingham Symphonic and also with the world-renowned LaSalle Quartet. Mr. Northington has also been heard in radio broadcasts and television appearances across the United States.

John F. Vokurka

Mr. Vokurka, our new Assistant Professor of Education, is from East Michigan University. He is very interested in sociology, and says that it is not as isolated here as in East Michigan.

From Indiana University Mr. Vokurka earned his B.S. and M.S. degrees. He is now working on his doctorate.

Being an assistant, Mr. Vokurka enjoys wildlife and nature. He likes to fish, travel, work on cars, and collect mints. Mr. Vokurka is working on a program of special education for mentally retarded children.

Martin D. Bittick

Our new Director of Choral Activities this year is Martin Bittick, formerly chairman of the music department and choral director of the Vicksburg, Mississippi, public school system.

Mr. Bittick earned his B.M.E. and M.M.E. degrees from Louisiana State University. In Vicksburg he developed one of the largest choral programs in the state.

When asked how he likes Milledgeville and Georgia College, Mr. Bittick replied, 'The people are very friendly. The staff are all tops in their fields. Milledgeville is a place I have had as everyone told me it would be.'

Mr. Bittick enjoys all types of music. He says that music is like furniture—contemporary styles are changing constantly, however many people still furnish their homes with an- tiques.
