GC Students To Attend Welfare Careers Day

A group of 12 Georgia College students will be in Atlanta on Thursday, March 8 to attend the annual meeting of the Georgia Conference on Social Welfare.

The program will include a presentation on "The Scope and Nature of Social Welfare and Social Work Training" and presentations by representatives of a number of social welfare agencies.

Agencies taking part in the program will include the Millicent Library of the Colonnade, the American Red Cross, the Big Brothers Association of America, the Georgia Prevention Bureau of the Atlanta Police Department, Wesley Community Centers, the Rockfellers Comprehensive Health Center, the Atlanta Model Olive Program, Dallas County Juvenile Court, and the Child Services and Family Counseling Center.

A group of 15 to 20 Georgia College students majoring in social work will visit for a week working in area social welfare agencies during the spring quarter, according to sociology professor Dr. Dorothy E. Pinnam.

Dr. Pinnam said the students all enrolled in the last course of a three-course series on social welfare, will be placed at the participating agencies. The students are emotionally disturbed children, emotionally disturbed adolescents, the mentally retarded, and adult psychiatric cases.

She said the students will be under the supervision of professional social workers from the participating agencies. The students will spend their time in their agency or college faculty members throughout their period of service, which begins March 29 and ends May 31.

The assignment of the students, the first such program involving sociology students at Georgia College, is the final phase of the installation of a new course on social welfare, according to Dr. Pinnam.

Chittlin's

Mr. Shadwell has been approached by someone who shall go unknown to have a chittlin' dinner some evening with all of the trimmings. To get an indication of how many students or faculty who would be interested in indulging in such a meal, we are running this questionnaire for the interested parties to fill in and turn in Wednesday.

I would give a mail coupon or use this.

I would place this questionnaire in the student center that would be held in the "pin'" dining room one Wednesday.

April 7 and 8 marks the rescheduled date of the American Cancer Society benefit show that was originally scheduled for this quarter. The majority of the students involved were being totally overwhelmed with heavy academic requirements that had piled up during a heavily loaded quarter socially.

To encourage the participation of a large number of students and faculty, it was decided to give a detailed description of the benefit project in this issue of the Calendar. The show is carrying out a show theme and will be called Madame Effie's Floating Palaces. The students of Georgia College and Baldwin High School will sponsor the show with the cooperation of the Millidgeville community.

Russell Auditorium will be decorated to the fullest extent to resemble a showboat as nearly as possible. The drive-in at the auditorium will be filled with cotton bales, crates, steamers trucks and any other junk to make the drive resemble a steamer. Mingling among and around the various pieces of paraphernalia the regular river crowd will be added to the air of authenticity. This group will include the intimate precious brother, Drug Hollis and Brother John and their devoted group of reformers intent upon stripping the exploitation and pollution of any person who dare to enter the den of iniquity that is famously referred to as Madame Effie's. Accompanying this group of well meaning and savant in Captain Harvey's Army of the Soul and survival and their "tainted" band.

Giving direct competition is the Oscar Wagner Medicine Show. With the intention of selling a miracle elixir guaranteed to cure appetites, slow, dry, rheumatic, furtive temper and warts. Oscar will sell his wares with the aid of an amazing and purely educational sideshow.

Madame Effie, Floats For Cancer

Madame Tulla, in all of her goddessness, will appear reading palms and telling fortunes. The occasional first flirt or attempted tottery can be expected, but never four foot efficient work of Madame Effie's bosomers will quickly dispel any such confrontations.

Now it's time to enter the activities of last. As you walk towards the gangplank you will see posters of all shapes and sizes, and acts of all sorts and personalities you will see inside. Walk on by the pachyderms and up the plank to the ticket window. Prepare to pay entrance if you are a student or $1 if you are an adult. All proceeds go to the American Cancer Society.

Go on through the door into the mushroom filled with all kinds of items that will amuse and educate you. A pretty Southern belle in a hoop skirt will take your ticket in exchange for a program describing the place. The place is filled with people who are expected and traced by many people who are white and exist in another century. Don't be surprised by anything that you see.

If you get thirsty, go back to the museum and tucked in the little store which serves tempertures refreshments only. Here you may also purchase presents appropriate for throwing at the village. But here you may also catch a glimpse of Madame Effie herself playing hooten to her business.

The show is now beginning. Captain Shadwell and Madame Effie open the curtain to two hours of mirth, merriment and general entertainment. The show is filled with dancing, stores, paper, jokes and a few tears. The show will end with an exciting melodrama purposely intended to make your laugh, cry and become totally involved. Then no, we will not forget the tickets ending, come and see it. Better still, why not be a part of it yourself? You will bear more show about the house prices and see if the show is prepared to act.

Remember it's Madame Effie's Floating Palace for the benefit of the American Cancer Society on April 7 and 8 at 8 p.m. in Russell Auditorium. Tickets are available at the door only.

Is It Freedom

That We Seek ...

Is it freedom that we seek. Then why from freedom do we flee? We have all the world at our feet and yet we're blinded to see what. When is our home--our wealth? Why is our search for fulfillment? To seek our goal for beyond this life, the two wonders of the own? Far beyond our known. For this will never come in future far. When the blind will see the glory of the star. And only then is future time. Will we live then find a path of freedom?

Colonials' defensive game improved significantly against Norman College, leading to a come-from-behind victory in overtime. The Colonials will look to build on their recent success as they prepare for their next game.

Abortion

The University of Georgia's Board of Regents has approved a policy regarding the performance of abortions on university campuses. The policy was revised in response to the recent Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion.

The new policy states that any request for an abortion must be approved by the university's committee on medical ethics. The committee will consider all relevant factors before making a decision.

The university also plans to establish a counseling center to provide support for women considering abortion. The center will be staffed by trained professionals and will be available to all students.

ECO Crisis

Yes, old G.C. has made the long journey. We have our ecology straw hats, and the smell of that familiar and reassuring display of sterilized mortality. There any of you start getting nervous, relax, I got this. We need to focus, or the smell will start to offend the matter.

Recently years, Robert P. Welsch, the head of the Environmental Science Department, has been advocating for more eco-friendly practices on campus. He has proposed several initiatives, such as recycling programs and the use of sustainable materials in construction.

I, too, believe that we need to take action to protect our planet. We should support Robert's initiatives and encourage our peers to make eco-friendly choices.

If you have any questions or suggestions, feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,

Reply

Dr. Welsch, in answer to your letter, I feel it is unnecessary to explain my position on the importance of environmental conservation in our community.

We are taking action to support the proposed initiatives, and we encourage other organizations to do the same. Our mission is to protect the environment and ensure a sustainable future for all.

Thank you for your efforts in this regard.

Sincerely,

Jef Walker Declares Candidacy

Jef Walker, Candidate for Male Co-Chairman of House Council

"Let's say our interest is shared, and it would really like to see us move in the right direction. And a few of your questions might be in the same area." With this in mind, Walker has voiced his support for the political office of Male Co-Chairman in the current House Council.

Walker's vision for the position aligns with his goal to be a part of the change in the Student government; he thinks that it's his duty to contribute to the progress of the student body.

The position of Male Co-Chairman is to serve as an active member of the governing body of the Student government. This involves making decisions that are in the best interest of the students at the university.

The job of Co-Chairman should also involve the implementation of an effective judicial system or code.

Survey To Locate Real Ecology Commitments

Is a survey beginning to be discussed whether or not students really are doing something to combat industrial pollution?

Idaho's Marketing Services Division has conducted surveys for years in an attempt to determine where different kinds of pollution are located and to whom.

In the case of controlling pollution from industry, Idaho will be interviewing sample companies in many places to find out how different communities are combating pollution in their area.

The reason is that if the nations of pollution control become known for mere words on this subject, there will be a greater interest in the market for pollution control devices.

The company's director of marketing, William B. Bullock, says, "This will be the first time we've really wanted to know what people are doing about the pollution problem, and we'll be able to find out by interviewing the companies that are already using pollution control devices.

In the event that the survey is found to be flawed in any way, we will make the necessary preparations to improve the survey results and to ensure that our information is relevant and useful.

Even though the basketball team may be a non-fraternal one, things do tend to get her every year as the Carline Lake draws closer. Everything seems to change as we approach the season's record this year. Even though she has been unique and consistent play throughout most of the season, there have been peaks and valleys that made a difference in the season's overall standing.

Despite this, the team has not been financially sound. Without these funds, all younger prospects destined for attendance at Georgia College and went all to three additional schools.

Editorial

Taken from the diary of Helen Allie Goodbody.

"I've never been so shocked in my life. Regular street language used in the classroom. My goodness, I thought we'd gotten too far. I would have thought I didn't have a right to feel this way. It's no wonder the world is in the awful shape it is today. People today just aren't given the respect they deserve."

While these words were written, the newspaper on which it was printed was still in the printer's hands. The editor, who had been thinking about it all day, made a mental note to discuss it with the school administration.
Contest Of Week:
Guess Who Lives Here?

Report From Ann Arbor Peace Conference

Last week-end about 1000 people gathered in Ann Arbor, Michigan at the Student Youth Conference on a People's Peace. In the final minutes of the meeting the group endorsed a program for May 1 presented by Bernie Davis, member of the Chicago Seven. According to the plan the People's Peace Treaty will be taken to Washington on May 1 with Nixon given 48 hours to respond. Then if no reply is received, those who have gathered will engage in civil disobedience and general "teaching" of the area, with the hope of garnering wide spread support.

The meeting organized by the NSA was called to consider what action should be taken on the treaty negotiated by NSA and representatives of the North Vietnamese Student Union.

The Conference began Friday evening with a general plenary session which provided some introductory thoughts for the meeting and set the agenda. Speeches were given by members of NSA's delegation to North Vietnam and residents of Ann Arbor.

Saturday morning and early afternoon were taken with a regional meeting called to discuss tactics for implementation and strayid causes. A May 1 causus was called for late Saturday afternoon. That meeting endorsed a proposal made by the Seattle caucus concerning the Peace Treaty and the May 1st action. The Seattle proposal called for civil disobedience and added to a moderating tone, "Civil disobedience is disruptive but it doesn't hurt the people involved to make a choice between revolution and the system. Revolution is a necessity, but many people who oppose the war don't yet believe this and they shouldn't be excluded from the movement. Civil disobedience will allow groups as diverse as church and youth groups to take part."

After the May Day Meeting the Conference retired to a dinner of organic foods. All the meals were covered in the registration cost and were prepared by an organic food commune.

Dinner was followed by a party dance billed as a "sister-and-filer meeting of our politics and our culture". The party featured several bands, including Black Rider and the Detroit Wheels, a light show, and liberal doses of political anti-longs.

Sunday was consumed by the second and last plenary session. The crowd sat on the floor and listened to a string of amendments and proprosals carried off by and one-upped by Hurmam's May Day proposal.

Feb. 22-24 Designated Student Nurses Week

This week has been designated National Student Nursing Week by the Board of Directors of the National Student Nurses Association to recognize the thousands of young men and women who are studying to become members of an increasingly important profession.

As medical science continues to make progress in discovering more and more about the causes and cures of illness, nursing becomes increasingly complex and demanding. Thus well educated, competent nurses are needed today more than ever.

Recent figures indicate that the ratio of registered nurses to the general population in the southern states is less than half that expected to be necessary in 1978. Today in Georgia there is a shortage of some 1,900 registered nurses.

Georgia College's Associate Degree Program in nursing is one of several such programs in the state designed to prepare students for nursing careers through an intensive two-year program.

Georgia College nursing students undergo two years of academic study in such subjects as anatomy, physiology, nutrition, human growth and development and microbiology as well as subjects in nursing. In addition to classroom work, nursing students also have the benefit of on-the-spot clinical experience at the Baldwin county Hospital, Central State Hospital, and other community health agencies. After two years of study, the students are eligible to sit for the State Board Examination for licensure as registered nurses.

The student nurses at Georgia College stay very active in many various projects around our campus and in the community. They have attended several state workshops and conventions and planning some money-making projects in the near future to finance a trip to the National Student Nurses Association Convention to be held in Dallas, Texas.

The students are currently involved with a clothing drive for assistance at Central State Hospital. Recently the nurses all wrote their congressmen, encouraging them to extend and improve the nurses' job protection provision of the Health Manpower Act which expires in June of this year.
