Ga. Intern Program
To Be Initiated Here

Beginning with the Summer quarter of 1972, Georgia College will have an Intern Program for undergraduate and graduate students at G.C. to be actively involved in specific projects of government agencies in Georgia, while earning up to fifteen hours credit toward their degree at the same time. All students at G.C. are eligible to work in the intern program. Financial support will be available from various agencies. The amount of credit assigned will vary inversely with the amount of credit to be awarded.

New Ga. College Buildings Named

Two new buildings and a dining room at Georgia College have been named. Names of three former faculty members who have left the institution tell something of the history of the college. The three are Alice Nagler, Mary Thomas Maxwell and Dr. Robert Hoke.

The dormitory has been named for the late Alice Nagler who began teaching in the mathematics department in 1932 and was chairman of the Department of Mathematics for 29 years. She died in 1970 at the age of 82.

Miss Nagler taught here for 43 years and was chairman of the Department of Mathematics for 29 years. She died in 1970 at the age of 82.

Maxwell Hall is the original building that was attached to the first building constructed on the campus. It was named for Dr. Mary Thomas Maxwell, who served as professor of English for 40 years and dean of women at Georgia State College for Women (Georgia College) when the first degree was granted. Miss Maxwell taught here for 43 years and was chairman of the Department of Mathematics for 29 years. She died in 1970 at the age of 82.

The name of the dormitory, Nagler Hall, is testimony to the importance of mathematics at Georgia College, according to Dr. Robert Hoke, dean of women.

Maxwell Hall will house the bookstore, post office, student and faculty lounges, offices for the College Administration, a conference room, offices for the two student publications, a computer lab, student lounges, study rooms, and three hobby workshops including a blackground room and a dining room.

One of the first graduates of the Maxwell College Union has been named the Hoke Family Building in honor of Dr. Robert Hoke who died in 1970. He has made many contributions to the fine arts and to the college.

Dr. Robert Hoke, dean of the College in July 1971, following his appointment by the Board of Trustees. He had held many positions in government, industry, and education. While serving as dean at Georgia College, he helped inaugurate the inner program and the evening sessions of credit courses.

Anderson To Attend Conference

Floyd Anderson, chairman of the Health, Political Science and Recreation Department at Georgia College, has been invited to serve as a consultant at the first International Conference on Outdoor Education.

The conference will be held at Algonquin Park, Dunrobin, Ontario, Canada, in August.

Summer Quarter Split

Summer quarter at Georgia College will be split into two sessions, each 6 weeks long, according to an announcement by Assistant Dean Ralph Hemphill. The purpose of going to the 6-week quarters is to allow G.C.'s summer quarter greater flexibility between course selection and their personal activities, Dr. Hemphill said.

He commented that this flexibility would be especially important to teachers who return for graduate or to return for graduate studies. Under the plan, the students will be able to return for grad school during the summer and still have some time for other activities.

Under the new plan there may be several methods of registration: students may register for 16 hours of one 6-week session and at the same time register for a five hour course which would run the full 10 weeks, or students may register for 12 quarter hours each session. Twenty four-hour hours (plus physical education) are the maximum that any student will be allowed to take during the summer quarter. Of course, a student may register for only one session should he choose.

Registration for the first session is in effect now. As of June 12; for the second session on Wednesday, July 12. Summer school will be held on August 12. Persons interested in further information should contact Dr. Lyn Cox, registrar, and director of admissions at Georgia College, Milledgeville.

Ec Grant Awarded

A $200 grant has been awarded to Georgia College to finance a 6 week summer institute on "The American Environmental Revolution". The new program under the direction of Dr. B.J. Dooley, assistant professor of biology, will be held at the United States National Museum of Natural History in Washington, D.C. August 1-22.

I'm interested in further information about this program should contact Dr. I.D. Doody, assistant professor of biology, at Georgia College, Milledgeville.

Packard To Speak

Internationally acclaimed social critic, Vance Packard will speak at Georgia College here, April 13.

Packard, who is currently working on a new book about "moderny," will talk here on "The Changing American Character.

The Savannah native first became known for his book, "The Hidden Persuaders," which was a study of motivational research techniques alerting the public to the methods of "persuasion in depth." He has written books on advertising techniques, "Psychology and the Contemporary Man.

In 1969 he published the best seller "The Status Seekers" which has sold over 7 million copies in 18 languages. Each of those books became number one best sellers in the United States. He is the first non-fiction writer to publish three fiction best sellers in a row in recent years.

His latest book was the "The Sexual Widowers" published in 1965. This work became America's first significant study of the Kinsey, high ang changing behavior relationship between the sexes and the shifting standards of acceptable behavior.

Packard has contributed to many of the leading periodicals including Reader's Digest, Look, The Atlantic Monthly, and the now defunct Collier's.

He holds a degree from the Columbia Graduate School of Journalism, and has done graduate work in economics at three other universities. He has held distinguished Alumni Awards from Colgate and Peoria State Universities.

His lecture will begin at 8:30 in the Peabody Auditorium on the Georgia College campus. There will be an admission charge and the public is invited.
